Courier Carrier's New Year Address 1879.

The following is reprinted from the Jasper Courier, of Jan. 1 1879.

'Tis midnight's holy hour—and silence now
Is brooding like a gentle spirit o'er
The still and pulseless world. Hark! on the winds
The bell's deep tones are swelling—'tis the knell
Of the departed year. No funeral train
Is sweeping past; yet on the stream and wood,
With melancholy light, the moon-beams rest
Like a pale, spotless shroud, the air is stirred
As by a mourner's sigh; and on yon cloud
That floats so still and placidly through heaven,
The spirits of the seasons seem to stand,—
Young Spring, bright Summers, Autumn's solemn form
And Winter with its aged locks,—and breathe,
In mournful cadences that come abroad
Like the far wind-harps wild and touching wail,
A melancholy dirge o'er the dead year,
Gone from the earth forever. 'Tis a time
For memory and for tears: Within the deep,
Still chambers of the heart, a spectre dim
Whose tones are like the wizard's voice of Time
Heard from the tomb of ages, points its cold
And solemn finger to the beautiful
And holy visions that have passed away.
And left no shadow of their loveliness
On the dead waste of life. That spectre lifts
The coffin lid of Hope, and Joy, and Love,
And bending mournfully above the pale,
Sweet forms, that slumber there, scatters dead flower
O'er what has passed to nothingness. The year
Has gone, and with it, many a glorious throng
Of happy dreams. Its mark is on each brow.
Its shadows in each heart, in its swift course,
It waved its sceptre o'er the beautiful,—
And they are not. It laid its pallid hand
Upon the strong man,—and the haughty form
Is fallen, and the flashing eye is dim.
It trod the hall of revelry, where thronged
The bright and joyous,—and the tearful wail
Of stricken ones is heard where erst the song
And reckless shout resounded.

MME. PETROVA, WHOSE NEWEST PICTURE "WHAT WILL PEOPLE SAY?" BY RUPERT HUGHES WILL SHORTLY BE RELEASED BY METRO.

The name of Mme. Petrova has come to stand for the very highest mark in emotional acting. This is especially true of this marvelous artist, since she made her debut in the realms of the silent drama, under the auspices of the Metro Pictures Corporation. Mme. Petrova has won a wide following, distinctively her own. No sooner is one of her feature pictures released, than Metro is besieged with inquiries as to the name of her next picture.

Mme. Petrova will be seen again on the screen, and very soon, in "What Will People Say?" a five-part photodrama of modern society, based on the story of the same name by Rupert Hughes, produced by Popular Plays and Players for the Metro program. Her last feature was "My Madonna," and before that she was seen in "The Vampire" and "The Heart of a Painted Woman." She will soon give up the speaking stage entirely and devote all her time to the screen.
